

To whom it may concern.

I had the pleasure of meeting Paul Stewart at a training event through the local authority. I have worked in safeguarding for a number of years and I normally approach these events with the mindset of 'this is nothing new'. The events focus was child sexual abuse, Paul was the guest speaker and shared his harrowing story to the candidates. I listened attentively to Paul share his life of abuse, how it had never left him, his suffering, how he dealt with it and the severe impacts on his family and friends. The impression Paul had on me was huge. I needed Paul to share his story to the staff at my school so they could understand the reality of sexual abuse on children and the impacts this has and that it is everyone's responsibility to help prevent this happening again to others. Paul has since delivered 2 sessions in our school and a session to another local school. The feedback has been great, powerful and sad, but thanks to Paul the staff all stand strong in knowing that we can do something to help stop this happening to other children. Paul keep doing what you do with SAVE it makes a difference
